community led participatory programme which aims to provide clean drinking water facilities in rural areas with minimum provision of drinking water (40 lpcd). It was launched in 2002 and the element of public participation is an integral part of schemes taken up under Swajaldhara. Upto 20% of Accelerated Rural Water Supply Programme (ARWSP) funds may be allocated for the Swajaldhara Scheme annually. Since rural drinking water is a State subject, the targets for coverage are fixed for the whole State and not scheme-wise. Swajaldhara Scheme is one of the schemes for rural water supply. Under Bharat Nirman, it is targeted to cover all rural habitations in the country with the minimum provision of drinking water by 2009.

The Department of Land Resources, Ministry of Rural Development has identified 972 blocks in 182 districts for its Drought Prone Area Programme. Under Swajaldhara funds are allocated to the States as per the inter-State ARWSP allocation ratio fixed for the year. The States then make district-wise allocations and consider specific proposals at District Water and Sanitation Committee (DWSC)/ State Water and Sanitation Mission (SWSM) level and approve them in conformity with Swajaldhara Guidelines. Government of India does not maintain scheme-wise allocations cleared by the respective DWSC/SWSM.
